come most of american seem to ignore them.

there is a Chinese exchange student in my class, but no one i repeat no one seems to care or want to talk to him i was once an exchange student in Iceland. When i went to a classroom, everyone started greeting me and asked me about my country.

how come american are so racist?

Playing off of the idea that you have at least some shred of intellect, there are two things I want to point out about what you said.

1. America is more than just the kids in your class. What they say and do is in no way reflective of what everyone else in the country says and does.

2. I would like you to reflect on your example you posed about the kids in your class not paying attention to the foreign exchange student. How are you so sure that people aren't paying attention to him BECAUSE he is foreign? Do you socialize with him? Who are you to draw this conclusion?

Unless you know for a 100% fact that the other people in your class don't pay him mind because he isn't a local student, there seems to be no way for you to come to that conclusion. Read: You're the one jumping to the conclusion therefore you're the one being racist.
