It may enrage a small number of people but it effects everyone who uses the internet to at least the degree of sending a communication to someone else.

Whether or not the number of people who are angry... eventually there is going to be a large influx of those people who get fed up.

If a serial killer is loose in the next town over, you might show some concern.. but it wont effect your life very much... that is until the serial killer comes to your town and you're suddenly afraid to leave your house.
