

---

Subject: Re: Social Networks

Posted by Omar007 on Tue, 06 Dec 2011 08:34:47 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

R315r4z0r wrote on Tue, 06 December 2011 00:56 Having two "none" responses is redundant if the question is asking which one you trust more.

The question is an 'also' as it says in front of the question and I already said this before to VuLTiMa

The poll is just to vote for your favorite or most used (I guess these go hand in hand but w/e ).

R315r4z0r wrote on Tue, 06 December 2011 00:56 As for which one to trust? None of them and all of them. I don't really use any but how exactly are you asking we "trust" them? By not giving away personal information? Because that's pretty much what people do on those sites of their own free will.. so :\

If someone doesn't want to give personal information to one, I'd say he/she doesn't trust that network with that information.

Because he/she apparently pays attention to this, he/she could give an opinion on which they (would) 'trust' more (more secure or private etc). With other words; if he/she would give out information, which network would he/she do that on over the others and why?

If that person did give information, he/she probably didn't think about what happens with that information, or maybe doesn't care.

In this case, the question probably can't be answered by that person, unless he/she did so because he/she trusts that network with that information. If so, I'd love to hear their statement/opinion as to why that specific network.

TankClash wrote on Tue, 06 December 2011 01:15 Remember myspace?

Neh

---