we don't treat him as a god or idol like all you hate mongerers have been implying...

its a game server.. free too.. no strings attached.. we wanted to play there because of the server mods, its that simple. We don't want the server because we love the owner, we want the server because the gameplay is fun... just because we're there doesn't mean we like the owner or approve of whatever acts he does.

its like.. how homeless people can hate the rich guy who made millions of people lose their homes and jobs... but they'll still go to a homeless shelter that's set up by the same rich guy. Its not like going there makes them worship him, they still hate his guts.. but they still need shelter.

and in this case, I still need entertainment, but it has been robbed from me. One of the main reasons to play on storm was the lack of ridiculous mvp/score/kdwhoring self-destructive gameplay that is encouraged on pretty much every other server I tried out. It's ridiculous but the gameplay on these servers (including jelly) actively encourages people to do stupid things like pointwhore when the enemy ref is down for an mvp rec/ladder, or waste time walking back to base slowly rather than die and respawn quickly for a kd rec, or intentionally lose the game before you lose your highest mvp/kd, or camp/sbh all day to avoid dying so you can keep your kd rec, and the list goes on and on. storm at least got rid of the rewards for mvp and kd, and uses a different ladder system that isn't pointwhore based (its more kill/repair whore based). Granted its not perfect, but at the very least the above examples of team hampering weren't so encouraged. nothing more annoying than telling some idiot to stop team hampering only to have him say "shut up noob, look at my awesome rank/ladder/recs/fame/etc that I got from these acts of team hampering." or something along those lines.
