That brings up another interesting thing about ren that I never stopped to consider.

I never really had any interest in online gaming until it came out. Prior to this online westwood games were crud. (Sole survivor or engi rush TS anyone?)

Now that I think of it, one of this game's "features" is either a super skilled lone wolf or team coordination to break through defense with a liberal application of luck that no one is in the buildign you enter.

It was almost a secondary game once you survived the trip there, then entered to plant c4 and avoid being killed.

Game designers take note...
