well Crimson as a player who in the last few weeks has:

- . organized community wars for your people
- . help set up servers for your comm war team
- . a person with vast moderating experience
- . been courteous to most in the server

my opinions will be heard.

You have not been around recently. of course you are going to take his side, he moderates (well that's very debatable) your server and i understand that. you don't see the bad sides of what he does, just the bad sides of what i and others do.

He muted me for a week recently for defending myself in an argument he started with someone else. i used no swear words, nothing like that just straight up honest defending. Furthermore after muting me, Joe makes the biggest deal possible out of it and get on his high horse and makes a big 10 minute speech in the chat box about how good his decision was. But no when i get racially abused in private messages and show him the evidence he doesn't care or show the slightest bit of interest in helping.

i understand you are probably in denial and think that just because your server is up 10 years (congratulations btw) that it's perfect. This however is not the case. I am by no means trolling, if i was you would know. i deliberately came on here to post this rather than getting shot down on your forums by a punch of people who are just going to back up Joe. This is more public and you can see by the feedback stated that i am not the only one who feels the same way. i'm sure you will just continue to ignore it and let us all suffer with Joe, but at least this post got your attention and there are respected people here in the renegade community backing me up

Also the fact you refer to me as thrash is very debatable. You don't know me and i could be anyone, look at both sides before you go on your escapades. and you call Joe level headed? i have never met a man with a shorter temper or as little care as Joe yours sincerely,
