The best part of the Internet is that no one ever trolls anyone or makes them second-guess what they're being told. Critical thinking must be a skill you lack, since you appear to be rather gullible. I suppose if I started squawking at you and said I was a seagull, you'd probably believe that too - assuming I did it long enough. This is far too easy.

What's far too easy? To brush of contradictions in your arguments, and then shift to calling it trolling? Yeah, you seem to do that a lot. It's how people on the internet try to hide their obvious stupidity when they have in fact run out of anything relevant to say. It's the easy way out, and you have quite the history of taking the easy way out.

I am still waiting on the answer to whether or not you were trolling, you seem to have brought yourself into a contradiction there between trolling while pretending to be Valentine, and making a point now, when asking for an arguement. Maybe you should to stick to throwing insults and being a shitty troll, instead of trying to use logic.

Sorry for backing you into a corner so quickly after you asked for an actual arguement.
