Iran modifies his renegade client so that he allows himself to bypass the radiocommand limit and now people expect the TT team to fix this exploit? Why would you fix something that was already fixed in the first place. That would be just a waste of time if you ask me.

Also the !mute command could be used afaik

It was most certainly not "fixed" in the first place, this is the same kind of shitty Westwood programming that allowed you to send chat messages that looked like they came from other players in the server. Yeah, sounds extremely easy to prevent, but tell them that!
