not sure if you realize this, but shaitan was the first one to start insulting peoples' jobs eventually it was revealed that he's in his mid-30s living at home working part time at wal-mart doing a job that high school dropouts generally do

just to get you up to speed

Regardless of the job he's doing, its still a job.

Props to him for even having a job, do you know how hard it is to even get a basic job working at a supermarket like Asda (British version of Walmart) in the UK? I know buddies of mine that are outta work that would kill for any job, it's much better than living on government handouts and a lot more honorable.

Personally my thoughts are, regardless of who started it, if you continue it, then that only makes you as bad as the person that started it.

Treat others as you would have them treat you.
