
Subject: Re: MPF banning players for being extremely good at a 11 year old game
Posted by reborn on Tue, 21 May 2013 16:32:10 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

shaitan wrote on Tue, 21 May 2013 10:57

reborn wrote on Tue, 21 May 2013 10:16

I strongly disagree.

Potato, potatoe. We use to use that remember? Lol. That's what I'm getting at. The same people, for the most part. The only real difference is these guys act like St0rm did. You can't take a shit over there without someone deleting a post. That mentality is exactly the same as St0rm was.

I digress...reborn I'm sorry to see you guys finally close down MP. We may have had our differences and fights, but in my opinion it's a very sad day for Renegade. Strikey told dronez he may keep MissionDM running on one of his empty boxes, if he doesn't(and would be willing), RC would keep it up with the name staying the same. We've got a few running uselessly, shutting down one would be no big deal. "Some" people still play it, not many, but that's not the point.

I hear what you're saying, but I still disagree. In fact, I would be irked if people thought that MPF was the legacy of MP, or what was left of it.

Yeah, it's a shame MP dwindled away, but it was the right thing to do. None of us could prioritise it anymore, unfortunately.

It's great to hear that Mission DM will still carry on, and I'd be pleased with DroneZ or RC running it, and making it their own.
