from what i gather, people were probably fed up with the whole situation i've been part of a community where people in charge treated their admin status like a toy and did whatever they wanted with it; no one could speak their mind basically Ani got upset in the end when people stopped worrying about being banned and just let it all out - at that point it's almost criticism that should be heard Ani felt like he was a king and that it was his kingdom, but people were fed up with it and not afraid anymore can't really hold it against Trojan to let that happen - it was necessary at that point kind of sad it came down to this
