I don't understand why MPF feels like it's above being responsible towards the Renegade community, this topic has 4000+ views and a lot of players don't have an account on this forums and just read it, this is bringing so much bad publicity to them.

Mistakes like somehow innocently banning a player for being "too good" happen (somehow); you can carry them with you and be ridiculed for them or you can man up and admit you've made a mistake. It's something I've been taught growing up by my family and I thought this was a common thing to do but it seems some people just don't outgrow acting like children.
