Well put...

What crushu said is a dream that wont come true these days, to many ppl in leading positions are busy with holding up grudges against the few players left that want to play. The Community that is left is more interested in personal disputes than in playing the game instead. Take my Topic as a good example, from a simple try and question for a christmas event, it came down to most likely the same trolls that always screw around with stuff like that, disappointing but 2015 will be the last year of Ren Servers that Ppl play on.
