=D I don't care about the game either and we havnt played a real lobby war in like 1.5 years at least so ive given up on ren too. rare that I join public for a long time unless I have like 30 minutes to kill but then ill join a dumb map and leave right away.

Still would be fun to competitively play which people in renegade never understood. All they did was sit forums for hours on end and talk shit but never want to play but instead go join a pub server where I PM a noob saying get out of your tank and help repair the shell and then I took his tank with an SBH. (YAY pub server so much better cause I can feel good about myself beating up on baddies!!!!) Public is just sad and I never understood why people would not want to play competitively with others who are somewhat experienced. For me it was never about opening clanwar league to brag about gold cups 10 years later. it was just playing competitively cause the game was actually fun when played properly.

Oh well, guess this is my official good-bye to renegade. Farewell old friend, its a shame I never knew about clanwars until like 2011 when the game was dead. It would have been great if in knew about all the comm wars etc back in 2006 when I was just a small boy. All I want for Christmas is to relive the glory days of my best friend Renegade with everyone <3

So long
