Regardless of how the situation was in regards to my departure of RC and how Volcom became owner, I do believe it ended up in good hands.

That includes shaitan, Volcom, yourself and anyone else currently or was a member of the staff. I'm not trying to take credit away from anyone.

If I had continue to lead RenCorner, I probably would have shut it down by now, or passed it along anyways.

You might have forgotten Wyld, but i'm the one who pretty much dragged shaitan by the hair and pulled him into the Head Administrator position. He was very resistant at first. At the same time, OSTK was essentially just history and non-existent at that point. It was slowly revived under my leadership, I even hosted them a new website, and the connection between RC and OSTK was (emphasis on was) made strong between D4rx and myself.

The first few months of the Renegade server, I sat in the server afk 24/7 with an IRC script to notify me if someone joined so I can entertain them with a game just to get it noticed and populated.

You wouldn't know because you weren't around for that either, as you were a long time friend and I pretty much dragged you in as well.

Again, just setting the record straight and assigning credit where its' due. The foundation I set for what you see today is still very much intact in the community.
