I think it's a good idea, looks interesting, hope you continue it.

ACK, you are meant to be at the same level as all of the members to this forum, meaning you do not have the right to move threads to a locked forum because you dislike the thread. I see no reason for this post to be deleted/moved/locked, it does not violate any of the forum rules.

This is not the first time, you locked a thread where someone was asking for help and you locked it saying read the tutorial post before posting. I then went to my FAQ and found the help he needed and posted it in a new thread for them, which wouldn't have been necessary if the original was unlocked.
