But Lynne has cancer again and may not live. Some of you may not know her but she happens to be my girlfriend and we've been together for a while now.

I don't know what else to say except that I'm hoping she'll pull through and be able to come down here in June to move in with me. Any sort of good will sentiment would be great.

For our sake, if you don't care or if you don't believe it... Just shut the fuck up and vent your frustration on something else.
