

---

Subject: Ya gotta love loopholes.

Posted by U927 on Wed, 03 Dec 2003 13:04:45 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Sir PhoenixxOurs is called the "FCAT", Florida's Comprehensive Assessment Test...

During the Freshmen year it was a practice test, the last three years it's for real. You had three chances to take and pass it, if you pass it you don't have to take it again. Luckily, I passed the silly thing the first time during my Sophomore year (I'm a senior now)... It's really easy, the only way you can fail it is if you just don't care, or if you're really that dumb.

FINALLY! Someone from Florida to share my pain!!!

I'm a sophomore now, and I absolutely HATE the FCAT. It's an easy test, it's just that they make you spend so much time "practicing" for it, you don't get ahead in the classes.

I say keep the test, but don't prepare for it. The preparations themselves are gay and useless.

---