
Subject: Just thought I'd show you a logo.....

Posted by Madtone on Wed, 31 Dec 2003 08:17:58 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

about the CAD thing..

I've used CAD at a job once, basicly it was for cardboard cut-outs.

You know the big cardboard cut outs you see at the movies, like the big HULK sign, well i made a few of those while i was in England.

Basicly you just mark off all the fold points and set up all the measurements. Then send it to the big ass machine (was about 2 and a half meters wide, maybe more and about 2 meters long.) and then you would see this kinda pen-knife tool skim all over the big piece of cardboard, putting crease's, cut parts off and cut out the pieces in the middle and such.

Then just basicly took it out brought it over to the laminator, put the big image already cut to size on top of the cardboard, put it through the laminator.

Then just built it and voila a nice big ass cardboard cutout for the movies!!

Well that was one of my past jobs, that was cool. Great money also!
