It appears because of a bug in phpBB 2.04.

It's semi-related to your ISP, where it sends the information around different servers, causing this invalid ID. There's not much you can do to cure it yourself, the only way around it is for Crimson to update these forums up to the 2.05 version, where the bug has been fixed.

It's been suggested before, but the chances of her updating it are pretty low considering the amount of changes she's made to the phpBB source code. To get the forums to operate like when they were hosted by Westwood.
