
Subject: Please Stop

Posted by spreegem on Fri, 09 Jan 2004 00:12:49 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

DBBspreegeml don't care whether or not someone is gay, that is their personal sexual preference.
. . As long as they stay away from me

God made men. God made women. If god wanted us to have sex with the same race then either one or the other would not have been made. The goal of life and survival is to make babies, you need a man and a woman to make babies. Therefore, they aren't doing their part in the world. Waste of a spot if you ask me. But, if you're both a man lover and a woman lover, then it's not AS BAD, but still bad IMO.

You meant same sex, not same race because no matter what if you're male or female you are of the human race. I never said that being gay is right, or wrong, I just don't care whether or not someone is gay as long as they stay away from me, as says in the small text in my own quote. I do not think that being gay is proper though because we are meant to, like you said, create children. I don't really care whether or not someone is gay though because that is your sexual preference and as long as it isn't contagious I have no problem with you, unless of course you try and do something to me. All of you "anti-gays" are fine in expressing your feelings on people being gay, but there is no stopping it people just are that way. I heard in health class when we were studying sexually transmitted diseases that mainly gays have HIV and AIDS, is this true? because if so and people know that why would they want to be gay? I would think that if that was true and people knew it there would be a dramatic decline in gays and all of you anti-gays would not be able to complain as much because the amount of gays in society would be much less than it currently is, and gayness would be much less common, maybe even unheard of in some places. I am not gay, nor am I fighting for their cause, I am just stating what I feel on the issue of gays.
