Time for me add some more. I was not intending for this to be a sexist post. I was lost for a topic title, but as I read the story all I could picture was some soccer mom driving her kid to school and not wanting to be late for her job.

But as a FF/EMT-P in the 12 years I've been doing this it is split 50/50 for male vs female accidents. Although I remember the female ones more than the male ones

I have been in 2 accidents.

My first accident... We were responding to a call and a 16 y/o decided she could ignore the pretty flashing red and white lights and the nice sounding horn and turn in front of the rig. I was driving. Lucky for her I slowed down expecting a dumbass move like that and we only suffered minor injuries.

My second one was my ball joint busting and me and my car going off a 10 foot high bridge. To this day I do not know how I escaped injury.
