No, this fix will allow the correct number of people to show up on gamespy as well as what is being played. For the WOL listing, people can click the server, it shows how many people are actually playing. but ON gsa there is no way to do this.

Currently, WOLSPy doesn't update gsa status, so on gamespy what it will basically show the same map for the whole time as well as the same number of people on the server, the gsa status will not change! So people have no idea what map is really being played or how many people are playing it.
