Today I came home from work and turned on my computer and it made this really loud humming noise on startup. I got worried that maybe it just needed to be turned off again, turned it off then turned it back on and the noise was still there. Its never really done this before, it did it once or twice but then stopped like 5 minutes after running. This time its not stopping, its kind of like a light humming noise (not to loud not to soft) and it kind of goes in a pattern like (whea whea whea if you listen close enough).....or you could kind of say it sounds like one of this mini fans that rotate running. Is this a problem, I mean my computer is about 3 months old, and it seems to be running just dandy! Hmm, anywho thanks
