I like to think of it more as EA, like the giant beast it is, ate Westwood.

It tore it up, and ingested it bit by bit, absorbing what it needs as its own, and leaving what's left as discarded waste to move on.

I still think it's funny tho ...

In a year where they make record setting high revenue, they still make a cost cutting decision such as this ... seems they don't give a damn who they put on the streets
