Wow...such actions against a seemingly small issue.

I have the uppermost respect for both Beany and SS; I have worked with them both on occasions.

SS, you have every right to take some action against Beany for posting a link to the site named; as you should. It was inappropriate, disgusting, and a possible violation against the channel's rules. However, personally I do not believe that a perminant ban should have been placed on Beany (I am assuming it is a perminant ban; please, correct me if I am wrong).

Every person misjudges the situation, or blatently screws up from time to time. I have, you have, and everyone else has. I'm rarely a person to bring up past issues, but I feel that I should at this point in time. SS, you screwed up on the N00bstories IP issue. Some have forgiven you to some extent; however, others have not. I am fairly sure you want to put that matter behind you and present it as what is is...the past. Do the same for Beany; let the goat.cx issue be what it is, the past.

I have not know Beany to be a blatent violator, although occaisionally he does slip. My suggestion, however flawed or decent it appears to be, is to keep Beany banned for another one to two days; then unban him, but remove any voice/op status he once had for the time being. I think that would be a better punishment. If you find that is still just to ban Beany, then do so. I will respect and honor your decision as an operator.
