Aircraftkiller

Here's the logic:

A person who hates your country, and by extension hates yourself, has an automatic rifle. He's standing in front of you, aiming at your face.

In your analogy, Mr. Bush would be the man with the rifle aiming at other countries. Now tell me, how can this be correct?

Your arguments are based on the assumption that you defend yourself. But the USA does not defend itself, it offends another country.
