To be honest I think the Renegade modding community is too small for us to have the luxury of picking favorites. We need all the modding we can get...if its not all of the same quality level and there isn't a huge abundance of super quality stuff flowing, then we just have to embrace that and take whatever we can get.

Aircraftkiller has been making maps for a long time, and he is good at it and obviously enjoys his work, which is probably one of the things that makes him critical of other peoples work that he thinks should be up to his standards.

I don't see any benefit in posting a message asking who is the better mapper, when as I said we need all the mappers we can get, whether they produce perfect work or not.

If you ask me the original thread was posted with the intent to start a flame war, piss off Ack and Titan, and end up getting locked. Looks like it succeeded.
