I dropped out in 12th grade before I graduated, since I got sick of the retards at my school and wanted to get out quicker to do something better with my life than live in CFL with the rest of the wannabe "APK" gangsters and white trash garbonzo beans.

I have no shame in what I did. Bringing it up will only expose the truth. Big fucking deal.

It's rather obvious to most here. You're wrong. You can't back up anything you say, because every single one of your posts dances around with some other half-assed insult which had nothing to do with the topic to begin with. Then you decide to play the superiority card.

I know it must seem easy to sit behind that computer and type out all sorts of stuff. I tell you what, since we live in the same state, prove you've got some balls and find a place here to meet me. We can either talk it out civil-like or I can smash my boots into your head... Or you can weasel out of it and talk about me dropping out of high school.

Your move.
