I found that eMule didn't work for me because of port issues (running cable off a router), so I use K-Lite K++. My sis downloads a lot of music, while I go for little music and a little bit of video. I don't want to spend so much on Family Guy and Futurama dvd's, and since those bastards at FOX took them off the air (only hit shows other than The Simpsons, lol) and those bastards at my cable company (Adelphia, may they burn in hell) cut off Cartoon Network when they show Adult Swim and put in Fox Sports Net. They have about 50+ channels on basic cable and hundreds on digital cable to put Fox Sports Net on. So, I use Kazaa Lite. I used to have 50 songs, then they accidently got deleted when I switched to K-Lite. Now I have 13, but it's all good.
