CrimsonI don't ban people unless they are a threat to the forums, my server, or my projects. There's really no one here who actually believes the crap that Alkaline and Scrumfy spew, so they aren't worth the time to ban. I wish they'd just get the hint and leave.

I respect that opinion.....Infact it's a good principle. Besides I have noticed if Crimson gets pissed off with the bullshit some people spew in here she locks the topic, it works well and most people get the hint.

Besides if someone gives their time, effort and dedication to not only a server but a gaming community as a whole, they hardly need to bother about someone saying something they dont like. As if it warrants a ban. Hell i've been banned from a certain forum twice, not coz I was a threat, because I left them and spoke about someone they didnt like very much indirectly. But it doesnt bother me in the slightest. People handle things in different manners, the more mature and more professional stands out far more than the immature, whiny stance: "I dont like you, you're banned!" "I dont like you saying that name...you're banned."
