sigh perjudice via association with the general country, just as bad as racail prejudic, sexual prejudice, and religion or ideoligy.

Come on people, thinking in such generilized terms is not realistic. The only thing sterotyping every made was more hate, so lets get real here, you can't judge a book by it's cover just as you can't realisticly judge a person by what country they live in. There are way to many things that will apply an exception that will total a sterotype. If you judge someone or something by a sterotype or any other form of generlization that lacks understading, your setting your self up too lose, as in more likely then not, your under estimating what really is up.

Really now people, lets can the prejudical insults based on where people live, your only going to feed your anger and make rash and unreasonable choices that way. You don't want to make a choice you will regret later, do you? I sertonly don't want to pay more for something then what it is truely worth.
