Well, I guess in your ongoing conquest against Crimson blinded people into trusting others who obviously couldn't be trusted. If your going to trust someone simply because they happen to dislike the same people you do, then I have no pitty for what happens. I don't condone it, but I have no pitty. He blames xptek for the breach in security, and while he is partially to blame, he had only come to him earlier that week with the offer. Vlokt decided to trust him, so he shouldn't be putting the blame solely on others.
