I've read reports that this would not ever ever happen the way it does in the film. The film is just a major exaggerate of will happen over a large period of time (Like 1000's of years!!)

It would never happen over night like that. It is going to take thousands of years to happen and very gradually. Like a raise of 2mm per year every year.

If I'm to believe what I read in the papers about a scientific reasearch done on something similar to this a couple of years back.
