Yeah thats why I don't like those damn things...as long as you keep moving they keep coming for you. Pretty much the only way to escape is to either outrun them, or run into a dark area. I got attacked by some pissed off honeybees which chased me a few hundred yards until I ran into a dark storage room. I got stung so many times that I got enough venom to get a high fever and vomit several times. I was wearing black sweatpants at the time, and bees see in UV so they go for black, so most of the stings were from the waist down
