
Subject: The Pits allows cheaters on their server?

Posted by msgtpain on Mon, 28 Jun 2004 23:15:23 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

well, not working in front of a computer all day does have its disadvantages.. mainly, I have to wait 9 hours before I can come back and make yet another reply.

Like I said originally, this is NOT about one incident only; it is about the complete and overall attitude which we have been shown by just about everyone involved with RG, aside from Mac. The above conversation was simply the "last straw" over the weekend that convinced me to bring it all out in the open.

Ack has made comments to me

Crimson has an IRC away message of "Im playing in [insert server here] because The Pits allows cheaters on their server" (don't forget that she's an admin ON The Pits)

Comments have been made by crimsons brother (which I can see to forgive, since he really may have not had a clue)

However, crimson then has the audacity to come question another admin's decision to make "renguard" a filtered word to shut them up, rather than admonishing what he was doing and making an apology (but why would she really, considering her away message)

And NOW, I have PM's on the boards from other players stating "I know I was one of the people making comments about you not running renguard, but I thought it was because of some conflict between you and BHS or Ack" which further solidifies my claim that YOUR public bullshit rubs off on people. Community members, who are NOT given the full story, actually thing that WE are just allowing cheaters because we are mad at you...

See how all this works? And no, I'm not okay with it all yet....
