I think people cheat not so much because they suck at the game, but more because it gives them a sense of power. Back before Blaze Regulator and Renguard, people would cheat, and there was really nothing that other players could do about it. Its kind of like rape in that sense - the pleasure comes not out of the sensation, but out of the high that you get from being unstoppable for once in your life. When you cheat you feel like you're in control and there's nothing anyone else can do about it. All those bastards that used to call you a n00b are now as easily killed as a click of a button. That is why people cheat.
