AircraftkillerIf I don't listen to opinions, and can't handle criticism, why is it that I'm responding to you and reading what you're writing?if you're actually reading what i'm writing, it's probably the first time. usually you just read the first few lines of my posts and then respond without even knowing what else i said.AircraftkillerI don't care enough about this topic to read your entire post and make a useful reply. I'm here to stir up shit(that was from a while ago, the med tank vs artillery fraps thread)

AircraftkillerWhere did I say I wanted respect?i dunno, maybe earlier in this thread?Aircraftkillermym word should hold as much weight as a WS employee

AircraftkillerWhere can you conclusively prove that I cannot take opinions of others? You can't, and you know it.why don't you take another look at almost any thread where anyone has ever insulted RenAlert or your vehicle textures or maps? i think the evidence is pretty clear.

Aircraftkiller earlier I was fighting mac because he thought it prudent to make a poll on this subject (Barracks exploit) while I thought it more important to fix it and be done with it.and in case you haven't noticed, almost half the people that have voted don't think it should be changed. this is just another example of you not caring about anyone else's opinions and just wanting everything to be done your way. which is why nobody wants to listen to you -- you don't want to make Renegade fun for the community; you only want to make it fun for ACK. if you want to run things your way, then play on your own server with whatever maps and rules you want. if you're releasing "fixes" to the community, though, you should only fix things that the community thinks are broken. no matter how much work you put into that glacier map, you are NOT EA. and you don't have the rights to the game. so like it or not, your word is NOT final. if anyone should get to decide what is changed in community-wide fixes, it should be a consensus (or at least a majority) of community members.

AircraftkillerI don't care what any dictionary says, "flaming" is what homosexuals do...i don't really understand what you're nitpicking about here. using the term to refer to email & online forum insults is just as acceptable as using the term to refer to gay people.

AircraftkillerAnyway, beyond that point, I'm not taking what you're writing as an insult. Sure, I'm an ass. So are you, and so is everyone else here. Singling me out because I happen to be more up-front than most is, as you wrote earlier, hypocritical; at best.no, it's really not. i'm not saying you shouldn't be rude to people. i'm saying you shouldn't be rude to people and then still expect them to respect anything you say. i may be an ass to people sometimes, but i never expect someone i mistreated to care what i think.
