How does pointing out the errors of others make me a moron? Logically, that means they can learn how to spell simple words.

Conversely, why can't you stop whining about what I say? Or is it just obsessive compulsive disorder?

I'm only annoying you because you allow yourself to be annoyed by simple text on a forum post.

It's illogical, I say! However I would honestly guess that more people find abuse of the "roll eyes" graemlin to be more irritating than me getting someone to learn how to spell "vehicle," since "edit_vehical" isn't a command in-game.

ERRR, its pointless trying to tell you anything, it will do nothing but go on and on and on and on because you dont think about what is said before, only look for more things to post wrong wiht someone else.

In other words, you know you're wrong, but you're the one who wants to find something to nitpick over.

How strangely ironic...

I am not trying to get into anything, but this is becoming quite pathetic. Cow, he corrected you, so what? Ack, correcting everybody doesn't make you more helpful, just more annoying.

Most people do not like to be corrected. I don't really care, but then again, I usually don't need to be corrected on my grammar and spelling.

No, people definitely don't like to be corrected. Tough shit. Especially in this case, when it's a console command, spelling counts.

I dotn think people are that retarted that they can't tell that i made a typing error, besides when your typing in the first two letters it pops up dont matter if spelling counts.

JavaxcxAgain: "retarted"?

I think he means "tarted" as in tying someone to a post and throwing pop tarts at them.

So "retarted" probably means someone who's been tarted before and is getting it done to them again.
