RenGuard has no impact of this sort of communication... the problem is probably something else. Someone with pages turned off, perhaps?

Need more info to give you a good answer.

if you go in to the buddie list at the left hand side of the screen, and click on one of your buddies to page him, (options, page join add remove -buddie)... from a computer not running renguard the messages are blocked from getting through, me and my friend were having no trouble till he installed it then only his messages would get through so we had to go in game to talk.

it could be something else but that was the only thing that was changed, between the last time we were talking to each other.

dont know what other detail to give really
