Now come one, beating up the weak and defenceless is no fun, especailly when they are glowing.
Beating someone up that that is mean and visuosly fights back, NOW THAT IS THRILLING! An Audeance likes to see good fights, not a wussy slauter.

Come on xptek, lets be pratical here. You don't want to beat something up that looks cute and glows nicely, every one will turn on you and hate your guts, and the fight would be so dull and boring. Any one can beat up a defenceless wussy, even another wussy.

hum, I don't know, the Al-Quida Terrorist maybe a better choice to stick in a jar and make a light bulb out of. Besides, they hate us, and having a glowing jar that cusses at you for being an american could be ammusing. It also interacts with you and you can tell it to F off and tell it how much we owned it and put it in a jar.

A glowing terroist, jarred then sold for allumination, as punishment for ramming a commercial jet in to the twins. That one sounds better.

Why the hell do so many people hate the French so much? Because trashy American news downplays the French? Even if they are slightly offended at America, I give them every right to do so. Considering how Americans treat them and how we flattened one of their embassies, among other things.

Why should we waste an entire nuke on France?

Anyway, I say we just leave the Eurocrats over there be. I just hope no more of our presidents suck up to Europe or world-domination organizations like the U.N. Jefferson called the nations of Europe "nations of eternal war" for a reason.

SuperFlyingEngiWhy the hell do so many people hate the French so much?

Good question. I don't think a few incidents by a few individuals accurately displays the opinion of a nation as a whole. The way the west treats the French, I'm quite glad indeed I'm not an American.

sigh prejudice via association with the general country, just as bad as racail prejudic, sexual prejudice, and religion or ideology.

Come on people, thinking in such generalized terms is not realistic. The only thing stereotyping every made was more hate, so let's get real here, you can't judge a book by its cover just as you can't realistically judge a person by what country they live in. There are way to many things that will apply an exception that will total a stereotype. If you judge someone or something by a stereotype or any other form of generalization that lacks understanding, your setting your self up too loose, as in more likely then not, your under estimating what really is up.

Really now people, let's can the prejudicial insults based on where people live, your only going to feed your anger and make rash and unreasonable choices that way. You don't want to make a choice you will regret later, do you? I sertonly don't want to pay more for something then what it is truly worth.

Yeah I know, but this is a message board that reaches out to an international community, so a very wide variety of people come and go with different ideas and ways of thinking. Say the wrong joke at the wrong time and you could start a h3!! of a flamewar, especially since there are hate groups or terror organizations who would love to take your comment seriously and actually do it if they had a chance.

I hate to tell you xptek, but considering some countries political state, realistically, that joke was in bad taste.

I would think it would make sense since that xptek didn't want you to take it seriously and laugh at it if he said what he said, and you said you found it "hilarious", so more power to you.

I didn't take it seriously at all. I would NEVER nuke a country. I'm a pacifist and generally oppose most war. I'm sorry, but, unless you were in IRC when it happened, you won't be able to grasp the entire thing. It was a joke intended for some people on IRC. But, people like yourself have to take everything seriously. :rolleyes:

ALSO: The petition was to Cuba, not the terrorists.

Heh...

I'd eat them. A frogs legs are strong from jumping etc. When seasoned well, I bet they'd be quite nice.

(FYI the snails they eat are heavily seasoned and are just a delicacy, not something you have with your morning coffee)

Nah, Singapore is a little island... so nuking them would probably mess up the ocean for quite awhile. They can stay with their frog eating ways.
