My God. How f*'n stupid can a group get.
<http://www.nbc4.tv/news/3280487/detail.html>

If they are going to complain about that, they should protest the birds that eat the butterflies.

I found out something on my state standardized test that astonished me.

It turns out that when you damage a plant, electricity flows from the damaged part to the stem, making researchers believe that plants do in fact feel pain.

WHAT NOW PETA BITCHES! YOU CAN'T EAT PLANTS SINCE YOU ARE HURTING THEM!

Hey PETA, better come and get me. I'm going to eat a burger and a salad all while releasing butterflies. MUAHAHAHAHAHA, come and get me, pussies.

Umbral - electricity going between parts of a plant doesn't technically count as pain because plants don't really have anything to register pain with. Perhaps it's just a signal telling the plant to repair itself.

As for the PETA - if you have time to write a whole letter over butterflies possibly not being able to get out of envelopes, you have no life. The PETA probably lives with their mothers.

Man... If I ever meet one of them I'll put THEM IN AN ENVELOPE AND SEE HOW THEY LIKE IT... and as soon as they struggle and struggle and can't get out, I'll leave em in there and go "God frickin pansy, a BUTTERFLY is more powerful than you..."

I dated a hot chick who supported PETA. I thought she was tasty.

BTW PETA was the reason we split. She found out that I hunt.
