Since i am a Bulgarian and a patriot, i want to know your oppinions on whats happening witho our medics in Lybia.

For those that dont know, Bulgarian Medics have been held in Lybia for arround 6 years now, blamed that they have spread disease (i dont remember hows it called in English) to more then 200 Children in Lybia.They have been torchered with electricity to sign documents in Arabian, that they dont even know the meaning of, even thought they denied what they have signed.

A week or two ago the judges at lybia announced that one of the medic has been released to return to his country, however the others will be shot there.

I personally think they dont deserve sometihng as sick as that.I am sure they didnt spread the disease and i really want to hear your oppinions on it!

It's completely reprehensible and also against the Geneva convention. I can understand your feelings, a great many British people have been taken hostage at one time or another, it is discomfoting to know your country can't/won't don't anything about it and that their allies simply refuse to help.

Wow, as an American I haven't ever heard of this before... I'm surprised something like that wouldn't be on any news anywhere. Are there any attempts being made to try to rescue them or postpone this?

Why am I not surprised?

Things like this go unreported in this damn country all the time.

As i've said before, FOX (Piece of shit biased bullshit network) is too busy reporting fluff and that cat stuck in a tree.

CNN, NBC... All the same crap.

As for the medics... This is tragic. Those 6 people (notice that they are people, not monsters) help their country and Libya, and this is their thanks?

This is just irresponsibility on Libya's part. Blaming 200 deaths on 6 medics is a bit ironic.

That's not an exclusive US phenomenon; here in Holland I haven't heard anything about it either the past few year I think. I did know about it somewhat, but I can't remember where I heard it.
