The Technician is crucial to keeping your base functioning. He is normally assigned to one building, and keeps it maintained and repairs any damage that occurs to the structural integrity.

He is one of the most important soldiers in the entire game. Without the Technician, you have no free repairs and your base will slowly crumble because of lack of maintenance.

He carries a single pistol and runs quite fast. He has no anti-structure or anti-vehicle capabilities.

The Engineer is his counterpart, a stronger, more expensive soldier with the ability to heal buildings completely with one shot from his "gold wrench" weapon.

Now the Engi Tech thing is correct, it always bothered me in Renegade that the Technician was better than the Engineer when in real life Technicians help Engineers and are inferior to the Engineer.

:thumbsup:

I dunno. He looks more like someone who would fix your water heater than someone who would be in an allied base maintaining equipment

1 shot to fize the building doesn't that make it a lot harder to kill the building?
