I've often walked into Obis and AGT's, but the stupidest thing I ever saw was this...

I can't remember the name of the map, but there are 2 sniper posts up in the hill overlooking the battlefield. I found one there and they killed me, so I went out with Gunner and blasted at them. I got killed again. This time I went up to the post with a chain gun and slaughtered them. I couldn't think of anything else to do so I stuck around for a bit and then backed off. As I did, I saw the same person come right back with another Sakura and continue the job. I was like "You've been caught, go away and snipe somewhere else!"

Actually, I don't think this is even remotely as stupid as being run over by the harvester...

^^Quickest way back to base for a refill.

Nothing like seeing your foes getting owned by THEIR OWN harvester though... I won a 1v1 thanks to that occurrence

<3 when mammy drivers get stuck in front of the harvy when they're trying to run away as you eat them alive. That is priceless.

The incident I'm talking about was Complex, I was GDI. All he had left was his ref and a med tank he'd stolen due to my carelessness. I planted a beacon in his harv unloading bay but he killed me as I tried to defend it. Then he moved his med into the bay but the harv pinned his tank against the wall so he couldn't get out to disarm it :rolleyes:

My personal favorite is the guy who thinks stacking sedans is "fun", and kicks me when I ruin his world record with my raveshaw.

The problem with "snipers" in Renegade is that you don't need to hide and use proper tactics to do well. Playing with some people is like playing football with a dog with 2 missing legs. The stupidest thing you could do is take on an artillery across the field with a shotgunner.. or how about people that buy apaches and think their missiles can reach great lengths

I have a nooby moment I would like to share. I layed a beacon with my sbh at the weapons factory. As soon as i layed it and cloak, a apc comes by and looks at it. Finnally, the driver gets out and try to disarm it with an engineer. I easily take the apc and run him over as the siren starts, and then i just run away.

I like it when people run about with Havocs and no-one can kill them...

Snipers are the bane of my existence, I got shot once from INSIDE my own airstrip, I'd just died and landed there, died again, and started there again. Some US fool got 3 kills off me in about 4 seconds.

The other one is hillcampers, ruins the game as they have 7 or 8 snipers sat outside your base with some nice tank cover, and you can't do anything coz if you're lucky enough to not get run over, one of the snipers get you... I find that much fun, not.

It all depends on the team situation, and how much people care for how they play the game. If I was in a situation as bad as your last example I'd probably go find another server. You're right, the enjoyment factor reaches 0.1. If you've played renalert, snipers only get 1 bullet and then a reload, forcing them to use real tactics instead of hanging around tunnels, jumping and killing everything with ease. I can understand paying $1000 for a powerful character but they are field soldiers and should be used in moderation.

If you still don't like them after playing renalert, I'd recommend call of duty. I assure you the rifle bullet that takes you down there will be from a skilled hand.

when you are just able to see an sbh and move towards them and they freeze on the spot to try not to be seen, and stand there while you waste them with an auto rifle

Or owning a mammy with a NOD buggy because they dont have the camera locked to the turret and cant turn around fast enough

How do you lock the camera to the turret? My brother says it's not possible...

Also the sniper noob thing happens on just about every server I go on, I use both European and US servers, and these idiots are everywhere

It's in basic options. Just look around, and there's a box you check to use that option.

you know jzin i've heard you cry about this too many times and im 100% positive now that your a n00b. if you cant get past a couple of snipers and a tank that only tells me that you are playing in games that you think your good at but u really suck at. you definitely need practice but dont worry we all started out as n00bs i know i did and i was on this same forum looking for help.....maybe u should do the same.....whenever im on i like to help n00bs learn..... at least those who WANT to learn.

1. How do you avoid sniper fire from 7 hillcampers?
 2. How do they remain on the server when hillcamping isn't allowed?

K, first of all if you're stuck in a situation of tanks and 7-8 snipers it doesn't really matter how good you are you'll still get slaughtered upon exposure. What you need to do is have people eliminate engineers at the back while you gather up ravesaws, mendozas and a maximum vehicle limit of Light Tanks. When your snipers have killed some, that's when you all rush out, focusing ALL your firepower on 1 vehicle at a time. Don't do things the way the TS system did it where everyone picks a target, that'll lose you the battle.

That sounds like it takes a lot of organization, something practically impossible in most of the games I'm on, as the lower half of the scoreboard seems to be Team Idiot..

True, you won't find teamwork like that in many places at all. You used to be able to do it in the Pits server but from what I've read most of the pro's don't listen to anyone except other people they know, and in any case I don't remember the last time on Field on that server where my team broke out of a hold.

I never said I was a great player, I just can't seem to rack up the points like others. I usually end up somewhere in the middle chunk of the rankings, dependent on the average skill of the rest of the players.

ok for #1 its all about skill and knowing the map u name the map, where they were hiding and how they were moving i could tell u how to avoid them.

and for #2 they either had hookups with the host OR were barely in bounds of the rules plain and simple..... any other questions i'd be happy to answer them

sw33tIt was 2on1.he buys an apache and takes off with his budddy right behind him.he was stupid enough to leave his friend in the middle of the field getting picked off by sniper fire.I take off in the stolen apache and kill him with a well placed rocket shot.the con yard blows up and he wants to give up.i bribe him with five bucks and he stays on.i switch sides with him and his buddy and he makes the same mistake twice.how DUMB is that

Wow, what a mathematical, and horrible lie.[/b]
