Yes, tomorrow at 11:00 A.M. I'm leaving for the state where french is the second most spoken language, Florida.

I'll be in Orlando for a week, we have rented a house there, its nickname is "Blue Moon", we've been there a few years ago at around the same time.

I hope it won't be as hot as I expect it to be during the next two weeks, if so I'll probably just relax in the pool... Heh.

I made no mistake when I wrote "two weeks", the second week we're leaving Orlando to go in the Keys, for those of you who don't know what the Keys are, they're a bunch of islands located at the bottom of Florida, they're REALLY close from Cuba.

So, anybody knows what's going on in Florida at this time of the year? I'm not going to "OMGWTFDISNORWORLDZZZZ" because I hate theme parks and also because I've been there before.

I'll be trying to get on-line with our laptop to upload some photos and browse the forums every once in a while, probably at the end of the day (I'm so going to love AOL, haha).

If you want to see how the Orlando house looks like... Here:
<http://www.vacationcottages.com/florida/blue/>

We will be in a house in the Keys too, but I don't have enough information about it.

Time to have a nice vacation!

Wow, have fun. Make sure you send me photos through IRC.

I've been to Key West before, and I love it. It was right after 9/11 happened, so we were stuck there for two weeks. Started getting really home sick, but the first week was nice. I'm going on vacation very soon (two weeks from now).

Well, see you later Aprime, have a great time.

I hate theme parks.

Also, your house looks like a house, so I don't think you're being scammed.
