Sorry, but I am lucky enough to keep up with 5 other communities... (2 of them are for other games).

We have too many gaming "communties" out there already. Sorry, but it's very unlikely that you site will have a long life. If I were you, I'd put up site that "connects" the communities together or just make a personal site. Just try to make something rich with content.

Stop spamming, when it gets to the point where "Why bother going back to that topic when there'll be absolutely nothing worth reading?" you know the topics ran it's course.

Well you lazy arses, couldn't even be bothered to write "no" yourselves... I suppose you lot are the ones who haven't downloaded Renguard then complain about cheaters. Thanks to the ONE person who actually gave a reason.

When I saw Gamers Union I was thinking of something a little more political, like a workers union... but then what the hell...

Actually I have downloaded RenGuard and I hate cheaters, so STFU before you go saying stuff and don't know anything about the people you are trying to say haven't downloaded RenGuard and complain when someone cheats. Besides everyone always quotes the person who says NO first when they want to say no.

So, again NO

No, we're mostly the ones the support Rengaurd and use it ourselves. That's why we're here..

Take your own advice. No one has to like Foss, or BBF, or appreciate what he's trying to do. Then again, there's no reason to respond so negatively. Unless, of course, you're intent on proving to the world that you are, in fact, a massive douchebag (we can only know the "you" that you present). If there's no interest in his boards, then the absence of positive responses should be enough indication. Trying to be cool by putting down someone's effort to do something positive doesn't reflect well on you, or on this squalid community.
