Why can't people read past gramtical/spelling mistakes? It's not really THAT hard...Tub says: "I want to put a song in my website, but I can't find any sites to upload the song to, can somebody hook me up with a site so I can upload my song?"

Freewebs will upload MIDI files, but MIDI is a stupid format, so unless you give them two bucks aa month or something, you can't upload other files...Or can you just not put them on a freewebs site? Well, i'd try making a quick account at <http://www.freewebs.com/> and then trying to upload your file. You might be able to use the url freewebs gives you to put the music file on other sites.

Yeah, but that takes too much time. I don't really want to strain myself to try to understand someone's gibberish. I can understand misspellings and no punctuation, but when it gets ridiculous, it gets extremely difficult to understand.

No you must try <http://www.angelfire.com>. You get 20Mb of free webspace for uploading any file you wish (I think it's any file type anyway)

P.S. Freewebs sucks.

Yeah, freewebs does suck, but angelfire is mean when it comes to uploaded images - at least I have problems with them going through google...

anyway, remember to change your link from http to http.
