

---

Subject: The Duelfer report
Posted by Crimson on Sat, 09 Oct 2004 23:36:37 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

The Duelfer report is great news for America. It further justifies why we are in Iraq. It shows further scrutiny into the Oil for Food (Palaces) program. France, Germany, and Russia (and I believe other countries too) were being bribed by Saddam to keep the UN off his back. His goal was to get the sanctions against him lifted so that he could resume his WMD programs.

But what still confuses me to this day... if Saddam well and truly had not a single WMD... why wouldn't he just let the inspectors come in and see that it's true? Why did he continue to lead them on a wild goose chase and provoke war against him?

---

---

Subject: The Duelfer report
Posted by SuperFlyingEngi on Sun, 10 Oct 2004 00:05:38 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Well, inspectors were in-country several days before we started our bombing runs, and they were getting access to wherever they wanted to go...

I don't think it was exactly the best time to invade...

---

---

Subject: The Duelfer report
Posted by Crimson on Mon, 11 Oct 2004 04:19:19 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Prove it.

---

---

Subject: The Duelfer report
Posted by liberator on Mon, 11 Oct 2004 05:45:02 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

That was like begging a sniper not to kill you when you're his mark and bullet is already leaving the front of the barrel.

---

---

Subject: The Duelfer report
Posted by exnyte on Mon, 11 Oct 2004 06:07:22 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

And that comment was just stupid and out of place.

---