So don't spend 25 hours a day talking on them. :rolleyes:

Any energy field above ambient will cause cell disruption with long term exposure. I though everybody knew that?

I think that sometime in the future. Somebodys going to stop and realize that they've finally labled EVERYTHING as cancer causing. Air, Marshmallows, Puppy Dogs, Apple Pie. Then they'll wise up and figure out that CANCER HAPPENS. Whatever your about, it happens. I bet if you took 50 people and put them in the deepest darkest cave with nothing about them but plain ol dirt. You had them live there for their whole life. Some would get cancer. Even though they aren't using microwaves or cell phones or living under power lines or drinking Liquid-Draino.

Diet Coke has been found to give lab rats cancer, but people have been drinking that stuff for decades, and I haven't heard of anyone with cancer caused by drinking too much Diet Coke.

Like Doitle said, it seems these people will eventually find that everything gives you cancer.

While we are on the subject of the bad things mobile phones do, a study in Austria has found that having your phone in your trouser pocket can make males infertile, so don't put your phone in your trousers lads, put them in a pocket next to your chest!(though that'll probably give yu a heart attack or something )
